Emergency Trip Made In Storm

GRASSLAND — Mrs. Genoud, Grassland district nurse, made an emergency trip during the storm on Sunday night to Edmonton with Mrs. Derousseau's baby from Donatville and returned next day without mishap, although numerous cars were sighted in the ditch, having skidded off the icy highway. The baby is now in hospital, doing as well as can be expected.

Loss of $30,000 In Early Morning Fire Which Completely Destroys Garage

By FR. J. E. McGRANE

Adding to the list of the number of fires in Lac la Biche, the Central Garage, owned by John Hawirko and Steve Stuharyk, was completely razed by a most spectacular fire during the early hours of Sunday morning, Nov. 6.

The fire was first noticed about 2:30 a.m. by Eli Rosychuk, who was on his way to work for the NAR. Mr. Rosychuk noticed a lot of smoke coming from the garage and investigated.

Seeing the building was on fire, he called Mickey Hamar and told him to ring the fire alarm, while he awakened the residents living in houses on each side of the garage. Fortunately enough, the wind was from the south at 15 miles per hour, and as the other buildings were located east and west of the garage, the wind blew the flames across the street, rather than toward the other buildings.

At the time of the fire, the temperature was five above zero.

The local volunteer fire brigade under the direction of Fire Chief Dobson, concentrated all their efforts to confine the blaze to the one building and in spite of the explosion of oil cans and drums and the acetylene tanks, they were successful in doing this and no other buildings were damaged.

The Sunburst motor coach, which travels daily from Lac la Biche to Edmonton, was parked near the door of the garage, and while it was impossible to get to the front of the bus, a truck was hooked on to the vehicle and it was pulled to safety. Nothing else was saved from the burning building, but there was only one truck in for overhaul. Several new trucks were parked alongside the garage and these were pulled to safety by the wrecking truck from Rudiger's Garage.

Another stroke of good fortune was the fact that the gasoline storage tanks did not explode. By 4:30 a.m. the fire was under control, but a watchman was left on guard, and at 1 p.m. the fire burst into flames again from the basement of the gutted building.

The fire brigade was called and it was only a matter of minutes before this small blaze was extinguished. $20,000.00 of insurance was carried but the loss including stock is about $30,000.00. Happening at this time of the year in one of the earliest winters we have had for some time, will make it most difficult to rebuild and until there is a new garage, there will

FEEDING OF MOLDY OATS MAY BE DANGEROUS TO FARM ANIMALS

By GEO. L. GODEL, D.A.

ATHABASCA—According to the grain trade, over 80% of the oats harvested this year in the Athabasca district, are mildewed. These are for the larger part rejected by the trade and farmers are wondering to what extent they can feed the oats to their stock.

"Mold and mildew growth, accompanied by heating, takes place in grain when the moisture content is above approximately 17 per cent for a period of time. This often occurs in grain that lies out in the swath or stook over winter, in grain that is threshed and stored damp, or in grain that gets damp in a bin or pile from rain or snow or from insect infestation. Although moldy grains are less palatable to livestock than normal grain, most molds and mildews are not harmful to them.

However, a few are and it is difficult to tell by appearance of the grain whether it will be harmful. Among farm animals, horses are most susceptible to digestive disturbances from feeding moldy grain; sheep are more susceptible than cattle, and pigs usually are not affected. A few reports indicated that some moldy grains have been harmful to poultry.

At the Experimental Station, Beaverlodge, an experiment was carried out to determine the value of moldy oats for feeder lambs and moldy oats and wheat for swine. Feeder lambs fed moldy oats (32 pounds per bushel and graded as "Rejected or Sample") gained at about the same rate (0.35 pounds per day) as lambs fed No. 1 feed oats (0.37 pounds per day), but required approximately 9 per cent more grain to put on 100 lbs. of gain. In the swine feeding experiment, 6 groups of pigs weighing initially 40 lbs. were fed the following rations: (1) Moldy oats (30 pounds per bushel and graded "Rejected") plus No. 5 Wheat (56 pounds per bushel). (2) Moldy oats (28 pounds per bushel and graded "Sample") plus No. 5 wheat. (3) No. 1 Feed oats (36 pounds per bushel) plus No. 5 wheat. (4) Moldy oats (Rejected) plus moldy wheat (52 lbs. per bushel and graded "Feed"). (5) Moldy oats (Sample) plus moldy wheat, and (6) No. 1 Feed oats plus moldy wheat. The moldy grain used had stood out in the swath or stook over winter and was threshed in the spring. From the start of the experiment and until the pigs reached 110 pounds in weight the ration was composed of 25 per cent oats, 62.5 per cent wheat, 12 per cent protein-mineral supplement. In all cases the pigs fed moldy oats took somewhat longer to reach market weight and required more feed per 100 pounds of gain than those fed No. 1 Feed oats. The pigs fed moldy wheat gave as good result as those fed No. 5 wheat.

At Scott, 2 groups of pigs averaging 40 pounds at the start, and carried to 200 pounds, were fed moldy oats in combinations with barley and a protein supplement. A third group received normal oats. The oats used in this experiment were from piles of oats that had stood out in the field over winter. The proportion of oats to barley at the start of the experiment was 2 to 1 and this was gradually changed until the pigs were receiving two parts barley to one of oats at the end of the experiment. There was no noticeable differences in palatability between the moldy and non-moldy oats fed in this experiment nor were any digestive disturbances noticed. However, it took approximately 12 per cent more feed to put on 100 pounds of gain when moldy oats were fed than when normal oats were fed.

At Lethbridge, the protein, carbohydrate, and energy content of No. 1 Feed oats were found to be more digestible by swine than the same nutrients in two lots of moldy oats (one lot graded "Rejected" and the other "Sample"). There

"Adam And Eve" Win Prizes At Masquerade

HYLO — A Hallowe'en dance was held in the Hylo Hall on Oct. 31, sponsored by the HSA. Many were dressed in humorous masquerade costumes.

First prize was given to Mrs. Pete Warren and Mrs. John Rosychuk, who were dressed to represent "Adam and Eve"; second prize went to the "Witch and Ghost", Mr. and Mrs. G. McEachern, and third prize to "Panchito and his Senorita", Mr. and Pat Gordon of Caslan.

Lac la Biche Plans New Skating Rink

Associations and business men of Lac la Biche are planning a new skating rink, to be built on the market square. The old rink which has been used for the past few years, is situated beside the curling rink, and hasn't provided the best facilities for the enthusiastic hockey players and skaters in the district, although it has served the purpose in the past. The new skating rink will be 175 feet by 75 feet.

A dressing room has been obtained and will be located beside the rink.

Last year Rev. Green of the Anglican Church organized four junior hockey teams, and like many others they will be anticipating completion of the new rink.

Masquerade Dance Reported Success

A masquerade dance, sponsored by the Canadian Legion, was held at the Memorial Hall at Lac la Biche, Monday. In spite of the weather conditions many attended in costume.

The admission fee was 75c and funds went towards the prizes. Robert Williams, Lac la Biche; Mrs. Perren, Egg Lake, and Mr. L'Heureux, Egg Lake, were judges of the night.

Winners of prizes were: Miss Joyce Breaun, first; Ernest Coune, second; Herbert Ericson, third; Glen Miller, fourth; and Mrs. Harry Lobay, fifth.

Moldy Oats May Be Dangerous...

There were no differences in the digestibility of moldy wheat 'Feed grade' and non moldy wheat (No. 5). No. 1 Feed oats also were more digestible by sheep than moldy oats. In chemical composition, the moldy oats were higher in fibre and lower in starch content than the non-moldy oats. This indicates that the mold growth had used up some of the more valuable parts of the grain.

The general experience of stockmen in feeding moldy grain indicates that it is less palatable and that stock require longer to reach market weight than when non-moldy grains are fed. No reports of stock having died as a result of long-fed moldy grains have reached the various experimental stations in western Canada.

There is no experimental information available in Canada on the feeding of moldy grains to poultry. However, a number of experiments reported from the United States indicate that poultry fed moldy grain as part of their ration have done as well as those fed non-moldy grain.

On the basis of these experiments it would appear that most moldy grains can be fed without fear of harming livestock and poultry. However, there is always a certain amount of risk involved in feeding such grain because certain types of molds are harmful. Therefore, it should be introduced into the ration gradually and the animals watched for any adverse effects. Most moldy grains are less palatable than non-moldy grains. If a large quantity of badly molded grain is available, it may be advisable to put the grain through a fanning mill. This will blow off some of the molds and improve the palatability of the grain.

Noted Alberta Radio Artist And Musician Plays At Campaign Meetings

By EVERETT BALL

Rev. T. Edgar Roberts, often referred to as western Canada's greatest sacred organist, will be at the console of the Hammond for the last week of the DeLong campaign. Edgar Roberts has made several sacred recordings including organ and piano selections. Three years ago Mr. Roberts went east as organist in the city-wide rallies held by the Back to The Bible Hour east. One and a half years ago Mr. Roberts was appointed as church organist and evangelist for one of the major denominations in western Canada. This appointment came after seven years of pastoral work in Edmonton and Grande Prairie.

Selections will be heard on the Hammond organ nightly as well as the lovely tenor voice of Paul Coleman. The mass choir under the direction of Mr. Coleman adds greatly to the services and has grown to about double its size in the first week.

Rev. DeLong, Ph.D., world traveller and lecturer, will continue to speak at each meeting and has announced some of his topics for special nights which include "Eight Tests of Religion" for Friday night when Sunday School students from all co-operating churches will be in attendance. A big program is planned for all out-of-town folks on Saturday with Dr. DeLong speaking on "Excuse My Alibi." Sunday afternoon topic will be of interest to all, "Will Communism Conquer the World?" and Sunday evening, "Two Magnets — Toward Which Are You Headed?" The meetings continue through November 20. About fifteen thousand people have attended the campaign thus far.

Hoarded $20,000 In Cash For 35 Years; Hard To Explain To Ottawa

EDMONTON (BUP) — A former Edmonton city detective told an unusual story of how he had concealed $20,000 for over 30 years when he appeared before an income tax appeal board.

The appellant, William A. Smith, a retired Edmonton detective sergeant, told the appeal board how he concealed the money in one hundred dollar bills in a glass jar, first in a hole in the basement of his home and then in a safety deposit box.

Mr. Smith is contesting a tax assessment charge against large sums of money deposited to his savings account during the years 1950-1952.

Defense counsel for Smith, Stan Ross, maintained the money had been earned prior to the time incomes became taxable in 1917.

Mr. Smith said he came from Canada from Poland in 1908, and worked in a lumber mill, where he entered into a real estate transaction that netted him $20,000. He said he moved to Edmonton in 1910, and deposited the money in a bank. Later in 1912, he joined the police force, leaving the real estate business.

Mr. Smith said that when the war broke out he withdrew the money and placed it in a jar in the basement of his home. He said he was frequently accused of being a German and, being an alien, he thought the money might be confiscated. Smith said he left the money in the jar until 1950, then transferred it to a safety deposit box.

Following his retirement from the police force he began transferring the money to a savings account.

Mr. Ross told the board that the case rested on the credibility of his client's story. He stressed that under the circumstances the story was reasonable.

Counsel for the National Revenue Department, F. J. Dubrule of Ottawa, said the case was fantastic in more than one respect. In discussing the plausibility of the case, Mr. Dubrule said the circumstances formed an unusual story, but their appearance to be no evidence to disprove it.

Chairman of the board, Cecil Synder, of Ottawa, remarked he favored the case rather favorably for the appellant. He then commented on the strange measures some men take to conceal their wealth when it is threatened. He then said he would reserve judgment on the case.

Native Eskimos Train In Manitoba And Alberta

A 19-year-old Eskimo who is studying in Winnipeg may be the first of his people to become a fully-qualified watch repairman. Charles Soupay, who comes from Aklavik, N.W.T., is now enrolled at the Manitoba Technical Institute, where he is learning the intricate skills of the trade he hopes to follow.

A fellow resident from Aklavik, Stephen Firth, an Indian, recently learned how to operate crawler shovels in Montreal and Cedar Rapids, Iowa. When his course was completed he returned to Aklavik to help move the town-site to its new location.

These two men are among a number of northern Canadians who take vocational training in the "south" under a plan jointly administered and financed by the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, and the government of the Northwest Territories.

All told, 50 northern Canadian men and women are at the present time taking advantage of the plan which provides them with free tuition, transportation and keep. They are enrolled in 20 courses, ranging from dressmaking to electronics. Some are studying to be forest rangers, some nurses' aides, and some mechanics.

Although most are taking training in Alberta, there are a number in Ontario, Manitoba and the Territories. Two are in Iowa and one in Saskatchewan. Most of them will work in the north when their courses are finished.

The primary objective of the vocational training plan, according to Hon. Jean Lesage, Minister of Northern Affairs, is to provide local skilled labor in the north. "Only a few years ago there was little demand for many types of skilled help in even the more settled areas of the Northwest Territories," Mr. Lesage said. Today, with the frontiers being pushed back, skilled help is in greater demand.

Applicants for training under the plan have to be recommended by the local school principal and their qualifications examined by experts in vocational training.

Future prospects in the north look bright for the trainees. Some have already shown exceptional skill in the trades they are learning, and all will be better fitted to play a significant part in the development of Canada's northland.

TO STUDY SOIL IN AREAS WHERE ALBERTA FARMERS PROSPER BEST

Eskimo Bird-Spotters

Kooyoo, an Eskimo who lives at Markham Bay, will soon have a new kind of letter from the "south" to show his fellow hunters on Baffin Island.

Kooyoo shot a Canada goose this summer that wore a metal ring around one leg. Curious, he removed the ring and took it to the nearest Hudson's Bay Trading Post at Cape Dorset where he learned that it was a bird band and should be forwarded to the Canadian Wildlife Service in Ottawa.

Instead he handed it over to Arctic Ornithologist Graham Cooch of the Service, in the area on an elder duck research project, who explained to Kooyoo, through an interpreter, the reason for the strange ring-legged goose.

Kooyoo was not the first Eskimo to spot a banded bird. A few like Towtonga at Eskimo Point, Tooma and Mickyuk at Southampton Island, have been turning in bird bands for the past five years, thereby assisting the Canadian Wildlife Service in the complex job of tracing and recording migration routes of the Canada Goose, Blue Goose, Ross' Goose, Snow Goose, and other northern birds that travel annually between the high Arctic and the southern United States.

Finders of banded birds elsewhere in Canada who send in the metal tags receive a letter of thanks from the Canadian Wildlife Service and from now on Eskimos will get them too, in their own language. A translation in Cree will be sent to Indians in the James Bay area and northern Ontario.

EDMONTON (BUP) — Minister of agriculture, L. C. Halmrast, said the provincial agriculture department is considering two applications for the chairmanship of the new lands and forest conservation committee.

Mr. Halmrast did not identify the two applicants, but it is understood they are soil experts.

The committee will assist the government in a new policy towards conservation and efficient use of land, forest and water resources.

The committee will be given power to investigate irrigation areas, marginal and sub-marginal lands, rivers and streams, forests and game areas.

Surveys will also be carried out in areas where farmers seem unable to prosper, and the experts will study and recommend the type of farming most suitable for the efficient use of the land.

9 More Long Distance Lines

EDMONTON (BUP) — Hon. Gordon Taylor, minister of telephones, announced nine new long distance telephone circuits will be put into service next month. The circuits will be between Edmonton and Calgary, and will increase the number from 42 to 51 circuits between the two cities.

Mr. Taylor stated that another 24 circuits, most of them between Edmonton and Calgary, are being engineered, but will not be in use until mid-summer, 1956.

"The Alberta government is aware of the difficulties being encountered and is bending every effort to meet the increasing, unabated demand for long distance service," Mr. Taylor said.

Says Socreds Must Have Dictatorship

EDMONTON — Social Credit philosophy and ideas could only be practiced in a rigid form of dictatorship, Mines Minister Prudham said in an address before a regional conference of the Alberta Liberal Women's association.

Commenting on a recent statement by Social Credit leader Solon Low, which said in effect that Social Credit probably is the greatest movement since Christianity, Mr. Prudham said Canadians would abhor the kind of system that would be necessary under Social Credit.

"No heaven on earth that Social Credit could devise would be worth the loss of individual initiative it would bring," he said.

Mr. Prudham said that giving Canadians an opportunity to enjoy a good standard of living is the responsibility of the federal government and social legislation and health grants are for this purpose.

But more than dividing up the existing wealth, the country needs development of natural resources and the federal government had overriding responsibility for such development.

OUR MAJOR WHEAT VARIETIES

Annual surveys made by the Line Elevators Farm Service show that the number of distinct varieties of hard red spring wheat grown commercially each year in the Prairie Provinces is about 15. Of these, however, 4 or 5 varieties account for a very large proportion of the total prairie wheat acreage. For instance, no less than 80.1% of the 21,812,000 acres of wheat grown in the Prairie Provinces in 1955 was occupied by 4 varieties — Thatcher (50.5%), Selkirk (16.0%), Rescue (7.5%), and Lee (6.1%). None of these varieties was known 20 years ago. Three of them have been introduced since 1945. A brief discussion of the distribution of the major wheat varieties by provinces follows.

Manitoba. In 1955, Selkirk, the new stem-rust-resistant variety, occupied 64.3% of the total Manitoba wheat acreage. Lee held second place with 16.8%. Redman ranked third with 9.5%, followed by Thatcher with 5.2%. These 4 varieties accounted for 95.8% of the area devoted to wheat in Manitoba.

Saskatchewan. Five varieties accounted for 92.4% of the total area devoted to wheat in Saskatchewan in 1955. In order of importance they ranked as follows: Thatcher (56.4%), Selkirk (14.3%), Rescue (11.2%), Lee (7.2%) and Chinook (3.3%).

Alberta. In 1955, Thatcher was the predominant wheat variety in Alberta. It occupied 57.3% of the total provincial wheat area. Saunders held second place with 12.5%. Other varieties of importance in Alberta were: Red Bobs (4.9%), Chinook (4.8%), Rescue (3.9%), Garnet (3.7%), and Marquis (3.5%).

Western farmers are doing an excellent job of following the wheat variety recommendations of their provincial Cereal Variety Committees. However, let's not rest on our accomplishments. We must continue to protect and improve the quality of Canadian wheat. Today, quality is Canada's key to wheat sales in the markets of the world. Plan now on planting only top-quality wheat varieties in 1956.

$10,000,000 PLANNED FOR TWO STEEL PIPE MILLS

Two companies plan on building plants in Edmonton for the manufacture of steel pipe for gas and oil lines.

Construction will start immediately on a $7,000,000 pipe mill for Alberta Phoenix Tube and Pipe Limited on the southeastern outskirts of Edmonton.

The mill will produce pipe from 3½ to 12¼ inches in diameter and will employ 150 persons on a three-shift basis. It will be in operation July next year.

The mill is being established by Canadian businessmen in conjunction with specialized pipe manufacturers from Germany, who recently opened a mill near Vancouver. Pipe and tubing, in the past, has been mainly imported. With the completion of the Edmonton mill, the two companies will be in an excellent position to supply western Canada's requirements.

Frank M. McMahon is president of the company and Maximilian B. Bauer, vice-president.

The capacity of the proposed plant is 150,000 tons per year. The buildings will have an area of about 80,000 square feet and will include two main production buildings approximately 120 ft. wide and 600 ft. long. All of the machinery in the mill will be of Canadian or American manufacture.

The president of the Edmonton Steel Fabrications Company, S. M. Brooks, of Long Beach, Calif., said

Cave-In Traps Man

EDMONTON — Nine workmen dug frantically for several minutes to rescue Adam Klowshinski, who was buried to his neck in a ditch cave-in.

Hospital authorities said Klowshinski suffered shock but no physical injury.

An employee of the city waterworks department, Klowshinski was trapped when the wall of an eight-foot ditch caved in, covering him to his neck. He remained standing and the other men were able to dig him out in a few minutes.

NEW PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT BUILDING COMPLETED

LAC LA BICHE — The new Provincial Government building, now occupying a prominent position in the business section of Lac la Biche, has been completed two months ahead of schedule and will be officially opened by the Minister of Public Works, Hon. James Hartley, on November 16.

Covering an area of 6,000 square feet this two-storeyed modern building, designed by the Department of Public Works, was built at a cost of $225,000. The general contractors were Poole Construction of Edmonton.

The building will house, on the first floor, the Treasury Branch, the Liquor Store, the Alberta Government telephone office, and the office of the District Agriculturalist.

On the second floor, will be the Municipal Affairs office, the Courtroom, the Magistrate's office and the office of the Clerk of the Court, also the Department of Forestry and Fisheries. The full basement, containing the steam heating equipment and ventilation plant, will also be used for storage purposes.

The structure is of steel and masonry. The masonry is composed of concrete block back-up and face brick with artificial stone panels. The 20-year bonded roof is of pitch and gravel and the floors are finished in Terrazzo rubber tiling.

Unobtrusive pastel walls and paint work, and blonde birch wood have been selected as decor, which is calculated to suit all temperatures and to give a greater reflection of light in each area.

The electrical contractors were Hume and Rumble, Edmonton, and mechanical contractors St. Paul Foundry Ltd., St. Paul.

Ahead Of Schedule

EDMONTON (BUP) — Officials of the Canada Cement Company of Edmonton say construction on their new $2,000,000 plant east of the city is well ahead of schedule.

The new plant is expected to be ready and in operation by May, 1956. The plant will have the capacity to grind more than seven million bags of cement per year, and will provide storage for 800,000 bags of finished cement.

New Supply Warehouse

EDMONTON (BUP) — Officials of the Parks, Davis and Company have announced plans for a new $80,000 supply depot in Edmonton.

Officials say the Edmonton depot will be located at the corner of 112 Street and 102 Avenue.

The building will be constructed by the Dominion Construction Company, and space will be rented to the Pharmaceutical Company.

Busy Bee Planned For Beekeepers

Alberta beekeepers are holding their 22nd annual convention in Edmonton on Nov. 23 and 24.

According to W. G. LeMaistre, Provincial Apiarist, some very considerable changes are taking place in the beekeeping industry. The program is designed to keep beekeepers up-to-date and informed on these changes.

The big changes are in the continued commercialization and specialization in beekeeping. There are fewer beekeepers, but these are keeping more hives.

The marketing of honey has been changing. Fewer producers are packing in consumer containers. This has the effect of channelling the movement of honey towards a few central repacking areas.

Pollination of crops has become an important beekeeping activity. Instead of a beekeeper renting a place to put his hives, farmers are renting hives to pollinate clover crops.

A beekeeper can obtain a great deal of valuable information by attending the convention. Outstanding speakers on many important subjects will be on hand to give help. Among these will be E. Braun, from the Experimental Farm at Ottawa; F. R. Garland, Winnipeg; Pete Pankiw, Beaverlodge Experimental Farm; B. Hocking, University of Alberta; Dr.

Aaron of the Baker Clinic, Edmonton.

A banquet with the Honorable and Mrs. L. C. Halmrast as guests will conclude the sessions.

Want Direct Air Route To Coast

Grassland

The storm which raged over Alberta last week completely blocked the highway just west of Grassland on Tuesday. A long line of cars were halted on each side until the municipal maintainer, driven by Ted Leshchynshyn, broke through and liberated the tired and hungry travellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Corse avoided the worst of the storm, having left on Sunday for a three week visit to the Corse's grandparents at San Francisco, Calif.

John Sutton from Devon, where he is working for Imperial Oil, was a visitor on Sunday.

Martin Murowchuk and John Greschuk visited Martin's brother, John, at Anzac last week.

Mike Sworin, Martin Murowchuk and Wilfred Johnson were in Edmonton on Monday.

During the absence on holiday of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Corse, Mrs. Kazmierczak, Mrs. Corse's mother, is looking after the house while Leater Corse and Richard Garnier are attending to the trucking business.

The Co-op meeting and show held at the community hall on Wednesday was well attended in spite of the road conditions.

Passion Play Gets Full House

The Black Hills Passion Play opened in Edmonton, at Alberta College Auditorium, to a packed house.

Starring the renowned Joseph Meier in his heart-warming role as the Christ, and supported by a huge cast, the passion play brings to Edmonton the "oldest story". Unusual lighting effects brought the spectators the feeling of actually being present at the time these immortal events took place 2,000 years ago.

The scene of Christ's body being removed from the Cross is an unforgettable one, being enacted in dead silence.

The play runs through to November 11.

Oil Well Runs Wild 3 Days

ERSKINE, Alta. (BUP) — A wild well which sprayed oil and gas over a large area near Erskine was stopped after three days.

Wild well tamer, Red Adair, from Houston, Texas, and other experts succeeded in getting a cap on the well and closing the valve.

It is not known which of two methods was responsible for the final blocking of the flow of oil, but crews had desperately pumped mud into the hole as well as forcing a heavy weight down.

Earlier attempts of using water and dry ice had failed.

The well blew when a manifold on a pipe burst. It was being drilled by Commonwealth Drilling Company for Home Oil and Federated Petroleum Limited of Calgary.

An Erskine, one of the families evacuated from the area, was told by experts that his farm would be useless for five years because of oil saturation. His fields had a thick oil sludge.

His brother David, whose farm was only a few hundred yards away from the well, was forced to move 70 head of cattle from his farm.

Another wild oil well which broke loose last week at Hawkins, Texas, and spouted fire, mud, salt water and oil, was also finally capped.

Professional oil field firefighters managed to lower a valve over the spouting casing.

However, at Kaplan, La., an oil well, on the verge of completion, blew out and burst into flames.

Workers on the floor of the rig jumped to safety. The explosion and resultant flames destroyed the derrick, a truck, automobile and other equipment. Other firefighting experts have been summoned to snuff out the blaze.

Cash Taken In Break-Ins

GIBBONS — A recent break-in has been reported in the Gibbons post office, lumber yard and cold storage plant.

A small amount of cash found in the tills was taken and at the lumber yard the cash register was also taken. Police were called and are making an investigation.

Legion Branch Dedicates Colors

Impressive ceremony of the dedication of the colors was conducted by Fort Saskatchewan Branch No. 27 of the Canadian Legion in a public service at the Community Hall, recently.

C. W. Simmons, president of the branch, presided at the ceremony, which was attended by representatives of the town council and provincial government, as well as the Provincial and Zone Commands of the Canadian Legion, the Legion Women's Auxiliary, members of the churches and interested citizens.

Principal address on the "Significance of the Colors" was given by visiting officer Bill Rourke, vice-president of the Alberta Provincial Command of the Legion. Introducing his remarks with the traditional words of the Legion's call to silent remembrance, he outlined the meaning of the colors under three captions — remembrance, loyalty, and service. The presence of the colors at any Legion meeting or public ceremony should always be a reminder of these three principles, he told the audience. Both the branch members and the community at large should honor the colors for this reason.

Fort Saskatchewan's mayor MacKie opened the meeting with words of welcome to the visitors, and congratulations to the local branch of the Legion, which for the first time had been in a position to acquire its colors.

Floyd M. Baker, M.L.A. for Clover Bar and a long-time resident of the Fort in earlier days, conveyed the congratulations of the provincial government, and spoke of Legion organization and activities in earlier days.

Service of consecration of the colors, which concluded the meeting, was conducted by Rev. E. L. Bishop, minister of First United Church.

Following the meeting, ladies of the local branch Legion Women's Auxiliary, served lunch.

shooting of 19-year-old John Lightning, a Hobbema Reserve Indian.

Mr. Justice Boyd McBride sentenced the elderly man to one day in jail and imposed a $600 fine.

Justice McBride told Larson he had imposed the fine chiefly because of the jury's recommendation for extreme leniency.

Larson was charged after Lightning and Jerry Potts broke into Larson's padlocked home and Larson shot Lightning in the dark.

Evidence revealed the man had been shot while a group of Indians, companions of Lightning, were outside in the farmyard.

Potts gave testimony during the hearing from a stretcher after being brought from Charles Cammell hospital in Edmonton.

Potts said when the outer door of the home was found locked, they broke the padlock and when a second door was found locked, they entered through a window.

Potts said he struck a match and a shot rang out and Lightning fell. He said he waited a few minutes and then made a dash for the window but was shot before he made it.

The jury deliberated for three and a half hours before reaching a verdict.

HOW ... DOES A STRONG FINANCIAL SERVICE Sell Wheat?

In many ways! The Treasury Branches stand behind the man on the land from the time he sows his crop until it is time to sell. We do this because we have confidence in Alberta and Alberta's farmers.

Running a farm is like running any other business — money is necessary to purchase seed, repair machinery, or expand the farmer's interests. He also requires such protection as fire and hail insurance, and safety deposit boxes for titles, deeds and other valuables.

By working in partnership with the farmer, we are serving the farmer himself, and the entire Province. For an active farm economy means higher living standards for the whole of Alberta. The full facilities of the Treasury Branches are geared to the special needs of not only the farmer, but all the people of Alberta.

Newlyweds To Live At Grassland

By Gabrielle Grenier
ATMORE — In an attractive autumn ceremony at St. Philip's Roman Catholic Church in Atmore on October 17, Miss Flora Grenier exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Norman Chambers.

Rev. Father Nael performed the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Grenier of Atmore and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Chambers of Grassland.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of chantilly lace and nylon tulle over satin. Sequins edged the fitted bodice and the bolero was styled with lily-point sleeves. Her floor length veil was edged with embroidery, and was held in place by a pearl trimmed crown.

She carried a bouquet of American Beauty Roses and wore a rhinestone necklace and earrings, gifts of the groom.

Gabrielle and Pauline Grenier, sisters of the bride, and Anita Kapt, niece of the groom, were the bridesmaids, wearing gowns of pink, blue and yellow, respectively. Each wore veils and matching crowns. Their bouquets matched their gowns.

Lawrence Anderson, John Carson, cousin of the groom, and Lawrence Grenier, brother of the bride, were best men.

Later a reception for 50 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents.
